STAR CRUISES GROUP SETS UP CORPORATE NEWBUILDING OFFICE IN LONDON

Star Cruises and Norwegian Cruise Line are pleased to announce the setting up of a Corporate Newbuilding office in London.

Heading up the London Newbuilding office will be Mr. Trond Sorensen, from Norwegian Veritas (DNV) who will assume the position of Vice President, Technical Newbuilding.

Mr. Sorensen brings with him a wealth of experience with more than 29 years at DNV. He has also worked in most areas of shipping, newbuilding projects, ship surveys, offshore as well as on cruise ships. His last position had been as Manager for the DNV London office.

ABOUT NCL CORPORATION

NCL Corporation ("NCL") is an innovative cruise company headquartered in Miami, Florida, with a fleet of 14 ships in service and under construction. The corporation oversees the operations of Norwegian Cruise Line, NCL America and Orient Lines. On 4 July 2004, NCL made U.S. maritime history when it introduced the reflagged Pride of Aloha, the first modern U.S.-flagged cruise ship in nearly 50 years. The 2,002 passenger ship is 100 percent U.S.-crewed, with most seafarers hailing from Hawai'i. The company is currently building three ships – Pride of America (delivery on 6 June 2005), Norwegian Jewel (delivery in August 2005) and Pride of Hawai'i (delivery in April 2006).
